WHAT IS IT & WHY DO LAW FIRM'S NEED A vCISO?

It has become increasingly important for firms to have a CISO (Chief Information Security Officer). The requirement for clients, prospects, and insurance companies to fill out security questionnaires ensures that the proper security level is in place. CISOs work with the law firm's leadership team to define its security posture and manage its risk. Many law firms, however, cannot justify hiring a full-time CISO based on workload and costs.

To provide law firms with the same level of guidance and save law firms money, MONICS has developed vCISO (Virtual Chief Information Security Officer) solutions.
